21. Teaching Methods and Assignments:

Development of ILOs is promoted through the following teaching and learning methods:

Reading assignments will be handed out at least one week in advance, along with assigned reading questions and presentation assignments for the following week. Learning will be achieved through careful reading of assignments, thoughtful summary and analysis in short papers and in mid-term examination, in-class discussions between students and instructor, and developed argumentation in final course paper assignment.

Projects and Assignments

Every student in the class is expected to :

- 1- Students will be asked to submit a 2-3 page short essay each week, analyzing and discussing the assigned readings for the week. Instructor will hand out reading questions for consideration one week in advance.
- 2- Each student will be asked to lead a ten to fifteen minute discussion on one of the readings each week. Students will be asked to highlight the most important aspects (as they see it) of the article they are reporting on, and to come up with some related questions that can be discussed in class. Students will be assigned readings for which they will serve as discussion leader one week in advance. Students will submit presentation notes to the instructor each week and will receive graded notes in class on the following week.
- 3- Students will be asked to engage in discussion for all the assigned readings and not just for the readings on which they will be presenting.
- 4- Reading assignments will be announced one week in advance. All readings will be available electronically, and students will not be asked to purchase readings for this course.
- 5- The mid-term exam will be consist of two short in-class essays, to be completed during Week Seven. Potential essay questions will be handed out in Week Six. Students will be able to use notes when writing essays.
- 6- The final exam will be an eight to ten page essay on a theme chosen by the student, in which the student will discuss at least 4-6 of the assigned readings from the course, and will make an argument and draw a conclusion in reference to their chosen subject. Students will submit to the instructor a one paragraph summary of proposed subject for final comprehensive paper, along with proposed readings to be consulted. Give a critique of one of the books of Islam and Interfaith Dialogue
